to Black Theology in South Africa. as if the issue raised by the two positions is irrelevant. The aim of this paper is to examine the implications of Mosala's statement of both African and Black Theologies, particularly in the light of what I have chosen to call the South African classical debate on the subject. The position adopted here is, naturally, in agreement with Mosala's position.

AFRICAN THEOLOGY OR BLACK THEOLOGY? TOWARD AN INTEGRAL

Black Theology is now a spent force but nevertheless I believe it has lessons for us all. I offer now my story which I have entitled "Learning from Black Theology". Black Theology will forever be associated with the University Christian Movement (UCM) which formed in 1967 in opposition to the long established Student Christian Association (SCA)
